

Unit 2

Thinking Critically about Pictures - Using the Five "Wh" Questions

Who?

A boy about two years old. He looks like he is covered in something red. It could be blood or red paint or marker?

Where?

It looks like he is in the bathroom and someone put him on the counter to clean him off or check if he is hurt.

What?

You cannot really tell what is all over him, but the same red substance is on the counter. It could have been there already or he is just getting cleaned up.

When?

It looks like someone found him after he got into whatever covers him, just before the picture was taken.

Why? Because he is a curious two year old and wants to explore and try out new things and anything he can get his hands on!

What is really going on in the picture: The boy, about two years old, got into his mother's makeup case in the bathroom and covered himself in either lipstick or blush. His mother put him on the counter to take a picture of him and then wash him off.
