

Kevin's 2.1 Letter Assignment

Kevin's first draft:

I'm not really psyched about this letter. It looks long enough, but I think I could use some help. Maybe Amy has some ideas. She is always writing and texting her friends.

Amy's comments on Kevin's work:

Hey Kev!

I made some suggestions on your letter. I put them in green so you can see them!

Don't forget your address!

June 30th, 2012

~~Deare~~ Dear Kevin, the Graduate!

~~Congrats~~ Congratulations on ~~graduatin~~ graduating! I bet you never thought you'd finish that major (hmm... what about 'most challenging' instead of major?) goal. I know you would rather listen to your music than work hard, but you made it ~~thru~~ through. Thanks to all your buddies who helped along the way. How about adding some more specific stuff about how different people helped you? It was a busy time playing volleyball and having a part-time job at Café Au Lait but keeping a priority on schooling was the best decision you ever made. What else did you do to succeed? The future looks bright!

Kevin, the 10th Grader (Should this go on the right side? Double check)

©Thinkstock

Overall: The length of your personal letter seems a bit short here, Kevin. Maybe develop your ideas with specific examples and remember you're supposed to address yourself in the future. Overall, you have some cool details to begin with.

~Amy