Film Title/Director

Star Trek (the Prequel)

Director: JJ Abrams

Actors/Characters

Chris Pine as Kirk

Zachary Quinto as Spock

Leonard Nimoy as Nero

Bruce Greenwood as Pike

Karl Urban as Bones

Zoe Saldana as Uhura

- is the prequel to all the other Star Trek movies
- Kirk, Spock are key characters

What started it all?

Kirk and Spock hated each other

Surprising to see how purposeful everything is (in terms of music, lighting, etc.)

Re-watching and reviewing is key!

Music

heavy metal music - very modern

Lighting

- Top & artificial in the scene at the Delta Outpost

Costumes

Mostly they're in uniform
Sometimes they're in casual clothing.

Nero wears a lot of black

The main conflict is man vs. man. Kirk also has some internal conflict with himself.

Quotations that I like:

- "I don't believe in no-win scenarios." (Kirk) Highlights the differences between Kirk & Spock's styles
- "Oh great, he's seventeen." (Bones) - soo funny!

What did you notice about each element?

Did anything stand out as being poorly done or well done?

Did anything about these elements not seem to fit with the rest of the film?

A lot of different techniques - canted angles (Spock's uncertainty), long shots (shows the power of the Narada in comparison to the small shuttle the crew is in)
