1.5 Short Story Character Placemats   /32

Review the terms for each task to be sure you are addressing the task correctly.

Remember that quotes require both opening and closing quotation marks. To quote spoken dialogue within a quote you use single quotation marks within the double quotation marks. Example: "The girl jumped in her car, and hollered, 'See you later!' "

Provide the page number for each quote in brackets after the quote.

/15 Marks
Which character is the protagonist?   /1
List three physical traits of the protagonist   Give one quote and page number to support each one of your chosen characteristics.   Each trait & proof is worth 1 mark   (/3)
List three character traits of the protagonist.   Provide a quote & p. # for each trait. Identify if each is direct or indirect presentation.   (A list of character traits may be found on p. 55 of Reading & Writing for Success.)   (/3)
What is the character type of this character? Explain your choice. Review your notes.   (/2)

List two values of this character and a quote to prove each value.   (/4)

How do you feel about this character and why? (/2)

Which character is the antagonist?   /1
List three physical traits of the antagonist. Give one quote and page number to support each one of your chosen characteristics. Each trait & proof is worth 1 mark   (/3)
List three character traits of the antagonist. Provide a quote & p. # for each trait. Identify if each is direct or indirect presentation. (A list of character traits may be found on p. 55 of Reading & Writing for Success.)   (/3)
What is the character type of this character? Explain your choice. Review your notes. (/2)

List two values of this character and a quote to prove each value.   (/4)

How do you feel about this character and why? (/2)

Explain how the two characters in this story are an example of a character foil? /2

Character foil: opposite characters are placed together to emphasize the characteristics of each