

Unit Two Study Notes

Complete the brief short notes to help you learn this material, and to provide you with some good study notes.

Camera shots and camera angles both contribute to meaning, but are different.

Camera shots: the amount of space between the camera and the scene

Camera angles: the position or tip of the camera to create certain effects for the viewer (For example, a low angle shot can have the effect of making the subject appear more powerful.)

How to View a Photograph Tutorial

Camera techniques deal with:

Focus:

Angle:

Framing:

Lighting:

Rule of thirds:

Color/Contrast:

Types of Photos:

Guide to Graphic Novels

Define the following terms:

Graphic novel:

Typeface:

Thought bubbles:

Gutter:

Lines/Emanta:

Speech bubbles:

Panel/frame:

Graphic weight:

Narrative box:

Angles:

Guide to Graphic Novels

How are the following elements, common in short stories and novels, represented in graphic novels?

Character:

Flashbacks:

Atmosphere & Mood:

What is Drama?

Drama definition:

A drama uses:

Reading a drama is like:

5 types of mediums/genre that are all dramas:

Define Script:

Elements of Drama - Briefly short note the key information for the following six drama elements:

Cast of Characters:

Setting:

Stage Directions:

Acts and Scenes:

Dialogue:

Monologue:

How to Read a Drama

What do you need to do when you read a drama?

Getting Ready

Before you start to read you should:

As you read you should:

Four questions you should when reading drama:

The End