As an employee, you have rights that protect you against health and safety hazards on the job. You have the right to participate in workplace health and safety issues and to know about any potential hazards.

Workplace hazards can be physical (i.e. constant loud noise), biological (i.e. bacteria and viruses), ergonomic (i.e. improperly adjusted workstations and chairs) or chemical (i.e. exposure to fumes).

The following pages contain images of various workplaces.

Find all the potential hazards in the workplace picture by either typing a list on a separate page or by using the textbox. You can copy and paste the textbox, move it to where you see a hazard and enter the information into the box.

A cartoon illustration of a chaotic farm scene. In the background, a large red barn is under construction, with a person on the roof and a broken ladder leaning against its side. A speech bubble from the broken ladder says "Ladder is broken." In the foreground, a green tractor is pulling a trailer carrying a large blue fuel tank. A person is pouring fuel from a can into the tank, while another person is driving the tractor. A third person is in the water, reaching for a small boat. A speech bubble from the tractor says "FUEL". There are also some orange barrels on the ground.
